Scarcity of Fruits and Vegetables Forecast

CANNED SUPPLY MAY BE SLASHED BY 20 PERCENT

German Collapse, However, Could See Lifting Of Rationing

HEAVY SERVICE DEMAND

Farmers Appear Chalking Up One Of Best Food Producing Records

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Civilians will get sharply reduced supplies of canned fruits and vegetables in the coming year unless the defeat of Germany halts currently high military demands, industry sources predicted today.

One large packing firm warned that the total civilian canned vegetable supply will be about 20 percent below last year and that canned fruits will be available on the nation's grocery shelves in "very limited quantities."

Meantime, a War Food Administration spokesman said the collapse of Germany "could" see canned fruits removed from rationing due to lessened requirements of the Army and Navy.

All vegetables—except tomatoes and tomato products such as catsup—are presently rationed.

Outlook for Year
The industry gives the following outlook on vegetables, basing its figures on continuation of the present military demands:

Canned Peas—Supply about one-fifth (or 20 percent) less than last year.

Corn — Considerably less than last year.

Asparagus — Approximately the same as last year.

Beets and Carrots—Military requirements for carrots three times above last year and twice as high for beets, hence not as many for civilians.

Tomatoes—Materially less than last year.

NAZIS MURDER 510 OF 520 IN FRENCH TOWN

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Nazi SS (Elite Guard) troops killed all except 10 of the 520 inhabitants of the French village of Comblanchien in Burgundy, Radio Paris revealed today in a broadcast recorded by the FCC.

The Paris radio charged the incident occurred after six German soldiers clashed with their own comrades in a fight of which the Comblanchien people were innocent.

Shots were fired, according to the French version, and SS troops, seeking reprisal against the villagers, hurled incendiary grenades into the houses and machinegunned persons seeking to escape from the fires.

CAMPAIGN ON IN DEADLY EARNEST

Theme Songs, Razzle-Dazzle Emblems And Slogans All Are Missing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Despite the injection of Frank Sinatra into the campaign, the 1944 presidential election shapes up as a deadly earnest and untheatrical business.

Record registrations for voting are reported without the stimulation of campaign theme songs, slogans, emblems and general razzle-dazzle.

The public, apparently, has called the tune. Manufacturers agree that the complete absence of campaign trimmings is due to the total lack of demand for them.

Novelty manufacturers are not even making the plastic Dewey or Roosevelt buttons, automobile plates and stickers, ash trays, lapel buttons with campaign slogans and thousand and one grotesqueries that emerge from novelty factories, because no one wants them.

The largest novelty retailer in the Washington-Virginia-Southern Maryland area reports exactly one request for an order of campaign buttons which he specially ordered. New York retailers report similar indifference to campaign ornaments.

The capital's largest bookshops report that the public seems to know where it has been and wants to know only where it is going. Spokesmen say that books by or about current political figures are finding no market.

In contrast book store managers indicate that books dealing with the postwar world—and in particular postwar America—are hotter than secret plane designs.

Among the slow sellers they include Henry Wallace's "Democracy Reborn" and Wendell Will-

HIMMLER TELLS HUNS TO KEEP QUIET OR DIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Admitting heavy German losses and lack of discipline in the high command, Nazi Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler has threatened to shoot Hitler's soldiers "who open their mouth against the fanatical defense of the Reich," according to the American broadcasting station in Europe.

"Speaking to German officer candidates, Himmler said he found that the higher the rank, the less obedience and the greater the subterfuges, excuses and contradictions."

'NURSE' PROTESTS CHARGE

Accused Woman Insists Recovered Child Is Her Own Son

DETROIT, Oct. 11—Four-months-old Robert King was placed in his mother's arms at 3 a. m. this morning, and Detroit police held a Negro woman, Eleanor Smith, 33, in connection with the child's disappearance 10 days ago from his home. Police said no charge would be made against the woman until detectives have had time to thoroughly question her.

The baby was the object of a wide search by Michigan police and FBI agents after his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King, reported that a mysterious nursemaid, known to them as Helen Rosman, had stolen the baby while they were attending a movie.

The dramatic solution of the mystery came suddenly as the result of information supplied by a reader to the Detroit Times after the Times had offered $1,000 reward for exclusive information leading to the restoration of the child to his family.

Act On Tip

Acting on a tip given them by the Detroit Times, police and the King baby's father went to the Smith home and found a baby there. The child was in a crib in a dark corner. Mrs. Smith was so positive and calm she partially allayed the suspicions of the detectives. Even King was convinced he was mistaken when the Negro woman showed him a large birthmark on the baby's forehead.

However, police took the baby's footprint and after checking, found it similar to that of the King baby. A fingerprint taken from the Smith home matched one left on a glass by the nursemaid "Helen Rosman."

COURT STUDIES COLLETT APPEAL TO EVADE DEATH

WASHINGTON C. H., Oct. 11—The second district appellate court today took under advisement the appeal of James W. Collett from a death sentence in the electric chair for the slaying of his brother-in-law and his family last Thanksgiving eve.

Attorneys for the 61-year-old Clinton county farmer contended before the appellate court that the Fayette county common pleas court erred in admitting as evidence Collett's purported confession of the slaying of Elmer McCoy at the McCoy farm near Washington C. H.

Defense attorney Allen Smith contended the confession was obtained under duress and claimed the lower court also erred in denying a motion for a bill of particulars; in denying a motion for postponement of the trial, and in permitting a verdict with insufficient evidence.

Collett was sentenced to die in the Ohio Penitentiary electric chair July 29, but the appeal automatically stayed the execution.

The prosecution, in argument before the review court, insisted Collett had made several confessions, all willingly; that the triple slaying was "murder for profit," and that the defendant's wife, Mrs. Laura Collett, would gain $60,000 from her brother's death.

The court, made up of Judges Frank W. Geiger of Springfield; Roscoe G. Hornbeck of London and Charles A. Guernsey of Fostoria, is not expected to return its decision for several weeks.

POLISH PREMIER TO JOIN PARLEY

Mikolajczk Going To Moscow To Iron Out Russ Differences

LONDON, Oct. 11—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczk will arrive in Moscow shortly to join in the talks of Premier Joseph Stalin and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in an effort to settle the Polish problem, Polish quarters in London revealed today.

It was reported that Churchill's offer to attempt to mediate the differences between the Russians and the Polish government in exile was instantly accepted and led to an invitation to Mikolajczk to proceed to Moscow.

Polish circles said that Mikolajczk was taking an extremely realistic view of the situation and left prepared to make further important concessions. The nature of these concessions is not known at present but it can be assumed that they include territorial considerations.

Mikolajczk was to be accompanied by President of the Council Grabski, foreign minister Tadeusz Romer and other leading figures.

Polish circles in London, aware that there is a considerable divergence in their viewpoint and that of the National Committee of Liberation in Lublin, are convinced that the gap can be bridged through the good offices of Churchill and the good will of the Soviets.

REICH CAPITAL TO FALL SOON, MOSCOW SAYS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Capture of Berlin was described today as "not far distant" by the Moscow radio in a broadcast beamed to America and Britain.

"The day is not far distant," Moscow predicted, "when the Red Army will smash Hitler's forces and enter Berlin, there to shake hands with our brothers-in-arms, the doughboys of America and the Tommies of Britain."

The broadcast recalled that 184 years ago yesterday another Russian army entered the German capital, "and showed its superiority to the strongest forces of the Prussian King Frederick II, who, like Hitler, usurped the title of 'invincible general.'"

"History is repeating itself," concluded the Red broadcast,

MRS. ALBERNI GETS ALIMONY OF $1 MONTHLY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11—Lula Alberni, droll little film character actor, was under court order today to pay his estranged second wife, Wanda, only $1 a month pending a divorce.

The nominal payment was set by Superior Judge Stanley Mosk after Alberni had recited a list of figures which seemed to indicate that he always wound up two and a half per cent in the hole, regardless of his income.

"Out of my salary, when I get it," he said after testifying that he hadn't worked since July 11, "I pay 10 per cent for back taxes, 20 per cent for current taxes, 10 per cent to my agent, 50 per cent to my ex-wife and three kids, two per cent to unemployment and social security, one-half per cent to motion picture relief—they take that without asking—five per cent for this and five for that—so I owe myself two and a half per cent."

NAZI TELEPHONE BLACKOUT MAY HIDE TROUBLE

LONDON, Oct. 11—The mystery of the severed telephonic communications between Berlin and Stockholm deepened today with Stockholm dispatches reporting the growing belief that official Nazi circles were trying to conceal internal trouble from the outer world.

The longest suspension of telephonic service between Stockholm and Berlin during the war continued, with spasmodic communication with the German capital available through Copenhagen, Reuter reported.

The explanation that a technical breakdown had suspended service was swept aside, the dispatch said, when one official call was received direct from Berlin.

Rumors sweeping the Swedish capital said that Reichsmarshal Herman Goering had been arrested. These unconfirmed reports were bolstered by the inability of neutral sources in Berlin to make contact with Goering.

STRIKE BRANDED STAB IN BACK

Walkout Of Mechanics May Boost U. S. Casualties, Patterson Says

DETROIT, Oct. 11—Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson today branded as "a stab in the back of American soldiers" a strike of 68,000 skilled mechanics called for tomorrow in 64 Michigan and Ohio war plants.

Matthew Smith, executive secretary of the Mechanics Educational Society of America received Patterson's words in a telegram. Smith, national secretary of the MESA, announced yesterday that 20,000 Detroit workers would leave 20 war plants and 48,000 would walk out of 44 Ohio plants tomorrow because of an arbitration dispute in one plant.

Patterson told Smith that the strike might "add both to the length of the war and to the size of our casualty list."

"It would be," the under-secretary said, "a stab in the back of American soldiers now locked in battle with the enemy in Europe and the Pacific."

Patterson added that "the government of the United States will not be coerced by any group."

Smith said the strike was called because the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Company of Cleveland refused to accept appointment of an arbitrator to settle a dispute over the dismissal of an employee last month.

Strikes followed in two of the company's plants, and as a result, the Army was required to take them over and is still operating them.

FAMILY SLAVES TO GAIN HOME, FIRE TAKES IT

GARY, Ind., Oct. 11—The bungalow for which they had worked and saved for years was a smoldering pile of ashes and debris today while Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Davis and their two children found refuge in the home of neighbors.

The family moved into the five room home last week and settled down to enjoy the dream come true. They had invested their life savings of $3,500 in it.

Last night the family went to visit friends. On their return they found the home razed. Firemen had been unable to save it because there were no fire hydrants in that sparsely settled section of Gary.

To buy the home, Davis had worked nights in the steel mills while his wife worked days in a Hammond war plant.

LAUSCHE OPENS VOTE CAMPAIGN AT YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 11—Charges of political bossism today promised to form the base of the Democratic gubernatorial campaign as Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the party's gubernatorial candidate formally opened his campaign in Youngstown.

In his "initial talk" before a Democratic rally in the Mahoning county industrial center, a stronghold of democracy and labor unionism, Lausche charged that "one of the principal issues of this campaign will be the political bossism of (State Republican Chairman) Ed. D. Schorr."

"Mr. Schorr wanted to be nominal mayor of Cincinnati because he knew my opponent would be the nominal governor and that Ed Schorr would be governor in fact."

Lausche's Republican opponent is Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati.

The Democratic nominee charged that "it has been generally stated that the Republicans would spend $1,300,000 on their campaign in Ohio."

"It is apparent that the opposition intends to reply upon the spending of money rather than upon the sound judgement of the public or merits of their candidates," he added.

"If money will determine the election between myself and my opponent, then I might as well make my exit right now. But the people of Ohio will vigorously repudiate my opponent's extravagant money spending campaign, and they will judge it to be reflective of the extravagance that the spenders will have toward money in the public treasury."

Lausche declared that he would be "the people's lobbyist to obtain legislation necessary and beneficial to the common good."

"The inauguration of a vigorous conservation program, the building and improving of institutional facilities for the care of the mentally sick and other wards of the state, the need for granting greater state aid to local school districts, and the need of giving relief to numerous local governments by means of a more equitable allocation of the sales tax" were listed by Lausche as parts of his platform.

JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 11—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts today declared that "the German people are desperate and are led by desperadoes who expect no mercy and to whom none will be shown."

The South African leader added that the bitterness and horror of the final stages of the war in the west might well surpass anything that has happened previously.

Russians Reported Shelling Tilsit—Jap Island Chain Pounded By Fleet

By International News Service
Choosing annihilation and destruction to honorable surrender—a decision that may be the hallmark of all Nazi Germany in defeat—the enemy commander at Aachen today ignored an American demand for capitulation and called down on his ancient city the full devastating strength of artillery and air bombardment.

The foolhardy guardian of Aachen's destiny, who has not yet been identified, had been given 24 hours to make his decision. His action, comparable to that of the "mad commanders" of Brest and St. Malo, was to treat the ultimatum as though it had never been sent.

A brief announcement from supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary force said: "There was no reply from the German garrison in Aachen to the Allied ultimatum demanding that it surrender and the attack on the city has been resumed."

Two explanations offered themselves for this almost incredible sacrifice of a historic and beautiful city together with its defense troops and its women and children.

One is that Heinrich Himmler's Gestapo reached Aachen in time to transform it into the first of the thousands of underground Nazi strongholds that Adolf Hitler hopes to maintain long after his tortured country has been militarily defeated.

The agency quoted a Nazi military commentator as asserting that "prior to the beginning of the invasion it had been one of the most bombed and most destroyed German cities."

The other is that the command-

SELF-CONFESSED HUN SPY GETS LONG SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Wilhelm Albrecht Von Pressentin, 44, former German count and self-confessed spy, was under a 29-year federal prison sentence today after U. S. District Court Judge Grover M. Mosesovitz, said he was saved from execution only by fear of possible reprisals against Americans now held by the Nazis.

Von Pressentin, also known as Von Rautter, pleaded guilty last month of reporting American ship movements and transmitting other military information to his homeland.

He had asked special consideration, asserting that the Nazis forced him into espionage when he returned to Hamburg in 1940 to settle the estate of his father, Count Earl Rautter-Wilkam. His mother is reported to be living in England as a refugee.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 11—Veteran Actor Richard Bennett, while considerably improved, was reported still seriously ill today. The 71-year-old former matinee idol who is the father of Constance, Joan, and Barbara Bennett has been confined to his home for two weeks by a series of heart attacks.

er at Aachen is a Gestapo general himself—one of those on the "wanted" list of war criminals who knows that he will die himself if captured and has decided, with that warped mentality characteristic of the Nazis, to carry innocence, culture, tradition and beauty along with him into the abyss.

Resumption of full-scale attack on Aachen presumably began the moment the deadline was past. Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' entirely reasonable ultimatum left no alternative, however. The Germans were given but one course of action—to discuss themselves, clear the streets of mines and surrender.

"But if military and party leaders insist on further sacrifices," the ultimatum said, "we have no course but to destroy your city."

"But if military and party leaders insist on further sacrifices," the ultimatum said, "we have no course but to destroy your city."

Ring of Steel

Allied artillery of all calibers up to the heaviest ringed Aachen from north, south and west. Huge fleets of heavy and medium bombers were poised at airfields nearby and to supplement these and disperse whatever air strength Germany might be able to offer in Aachen's defense, huge swarms of other craft swept out from the British Isles.

Cologne and Coblenz were brought under heavy bombardment to forestall any great concentration of enemy power over Aachen itself.

Military targets such as the railway station, post office and telephone exchanges are present in Aachen in plenty, but there are in addition scores of cultural monuments which can hardly escape destruction.

This city of 164,000 persons, 37½ miles from the Rhine and known to the Romans as Aqueae Grani, was the residence of Charlemagne, who died there in the year 814. It contains one of the oldest churches in Germany, known as the Minster, where Charlemagne is buried.

Its town hall once was part of Charlemagne's palace. It has half a dozen museums with priceless contents, half a dozen great theatres and a magnificent opera house.

To Destroy City

The Allied plans necessarily call for systematic destruction of all this to rubble, for by no other means save a German surrender can a dangerous "hedgehog" already well behind the Allied lines be eradicated. As in the case of Cassino in Italy, the method chosen was the German way—destruction—and Aachen may set the example for the rest of the Reich.

As the hour for capitulation came and went, First Army troops outside Aachen closed the circle around the city almost completely. Observers believed that Aachen might be leveled completely within a few days.

On the western front below Aachen, First Army units drove forward in hard fighting southwest of Hurling.

On the Third Army front Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's men smashed out a 1,500-yard gain in the forest at Farroy, east of Luneville, while other Third Army elements engaged Nazi forces in hand-to-hand fighting in Maizieres-Les-Metz.

Bombers Active

RAF Mosquito bombers sped from British bases to rock the German industrial city of Cologne with a blockbuster attack during the night. The speedy British planes hammered at their target only 30 miles ahead of American spearheads driving through Nazi territory.

The German radio reported daylight bombers over western Germany with other formations near Carinthia and Styria.

On the eastern front Russian heavy artillery batteries were reported firing on the German city of Tilsit in East Prussia, just across the Lithuanian frontier.

As front line dispatches told of the shelling of Tilsit, Red Army legions developed their offensive from Baltic positions above Memel, grinding through German defenses in blows against the trapped 100,000 Nazis in the Riga area.

Russians Advance

In the south, in Hungary and Serbia, other Soviet advances scored major gains, with Russian elements severing the last life-line for an additional 100,000 Nazis in the Balkans by cutting the Belgrade-Athens railroad.

In Hungary the main Soviet offensive drove for Budapest, while a side blow surging to within three miles of Cluj threatened to trap additional Nazis in Transylvania.

American and British forces on the Italian front scored limited gains as rain blanketed the battle area. Yank fighters drove to within 10 miles of Bologna in their offensive up the Florence-Bologna road while British troops of the however, that this picture could radically change on vegetables if the government reduced quotas out of this year's pack or released substantial quantities from reserve stocks.

Here's what the packing industry predicts on availability of various canned fruit items put up in this year's pack:

Peaches—Lack of manpower cut down the industry's pack which will be "only about average." With military requirements for peaches boosted above earlier estimates, civilian supplies will be "materially less than last year."

Pears—Although the pack exceeds last year's, government needs are larger; hence, civilians will find "very small" quantities of pears on the grocers' shelves.

Fruit Cocktail—High military demand, less for civilians. Pineapple and Pineapple Juice—These items will be "still scarcer than last year" due to low 1943 pack and higher military requirements.

Apricots—The one bright spot in the fruit picture, apricots will be available to civilians in ample quantities.

Held as affecting the canned fruit and vegetable pack this year were the following developments:

1. WFA increased percentages of several food items to be set aside for military use.
2. Weather has cut down a number of pack estimates.
3. The manpower situation has become more difficult for the industry.

chalking up for 1944 one of the best food production records in history, building tremendous stockpiles of grain and meat for prosecution of the war at home and abroad.

In its crop report based on Oct. 1 conditions, the agriculture department predicted this year's harvest with rank with—and may exceed—the record 1942 production.

The corn crop may be the largest ever produced and is estimated at 3.2 billion bushels while the overall grain output "seems likely to equal the record tonnage of two years ago."

Production of livestock products also will exceed any past year except 1943, the department estimated, probably about 12 percent higher than in any year prior to 1940.

Labeled by the department as "remarkable," the record 1944 harvest has been produced by farmers confronted with serious manpower and machinery shortages and in some cases wet spring weather which delayed plantings. Late frosts, however, have saved the bulk of the major crops in most farm areas.

Six scarlet fever cases are under quarantine in Pickaway county, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, reported Wednesday.

These are the only cases of contagious disease in the county.

In his most outspoken tribute yet to the efforts of American and Britain, Premier Joseph Stalin at a luncheon in honor of visiting Prime Minister Winston Churchill praised the Allied drive into Germany from the west.

The Soviet marshal also declared his appreciation of the work of U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull in building an international security organization.

Churchill, who with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is in Moscow for a series of war conferences with Stalin, responded to the premier's remarks, saying:

"It is a sign of a great nation and a great man to be magnanimous and generous, and Marshal Stalin has been both. I have always thought, and think now, that it was the Red Army which clawed the guts out of the filthy Nazis." Amid a friendly atmosphere and with numerous toasts, British and Soviet leaders emphasized the importance of post-war cooperation and collaboration.

HEALTH QUIZ

Do you have poor digestion? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel headachy after eating? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you get sour or upset easily? ☐ YES ☐ NO
Do you feel tired—listless? ☐ YES ☐ NO

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 10¢ and 25¢.

off the baby. The baby was still so dark, detectives continued washing. A substance, apparently a sun-tan coloring, washed away leaving the child's white skin exposed.

Nurse Protests

Mrs. Smith, still protesting that the baby was her own, was taken to police headquarters. Her husband, Eugene, was released after telling Chief of Detectives Paul H. Wencel the following story:

"Eleanor went to Chicago last June. When she returned, she told me she had a premature baby at Wesley Memorial hospital. She said the baby was in an incubator and for that reason, she could not bring it back with her."

"Around Aug. 4, Eleanor returned to Chicago," Smith continued. "When she returned to Detroit a few days later, she told me her baby had been stricken with infantile paralysis and that the hospital had been quarantined."

"She said she was not allowed to see the child, but that the hospital was to keep her posted as to his condition by means of postal cards."

Smith told Wencel his wife's actions gradually began to arouse his suspicions. He said the day the King baby was kidnapped, Eleanor told him she had received a card from the Chicago hospital saying they were sending her child to Detroit. Smith said she did not show him the card and on calling the hospital in Chicago, he was informed by hospital attendants that they had never heard of his wife.

HEARING CONTINUED

Hearing of Loring H. McAbee of Columbus, accused of being the driver of the car which struck and fatally injured Edward Reese, 64, South Bloomfield, had been continued Wednesday. At a preliminary hearing before Justice of Peace Elmer Malone Tuesday night, the case was continued until next Tuesday night when a coroner's report was not submitted.

CAMPAIGN ON IN DEADLY EARNEST

kie's "One World," which is said to have picked up momentum after controversies about its merits.

The Crossley and Hooper analyses of radio audience strength complete until the first week in October show that the two presidential candidates must speak for themselves to the public.

They rate, roughly, below Bob Hope whose audience pull commands the greatest respect. When differences in the day and the time of the broadcasts are taken into account the two candidates are heard by about the same number of people, it was reported.

The secondary candidates, senators, congressmen and other speakers who make campaign addresses draw a comparatively infinitesimal audience according to the professional analyses.

The public, having signified its intention to vote in overwhelming numbers, seems to want the straight stuff. To hi-de-ho is definitely spinach in this wartime election.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Robert Valentine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loring E. Valentine, 410 East Mound street, has arrived at Aberdeen Proving Ground for his basic training. He left Camp Atterbury, Ind., October 2 and arrived at Aberdeen on October 3. His address is as follows: Private Robert Dale Valentine, ASN 3585128, Co. N, 1st Reg. A. S. F. T. C., Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine have received also a letter written September 22 by their son, Donald, who is serving as gunner on a 90-M. M. Anti-Aircraft gun in France. He writes that he is well but very busy and doesn't have time to write to all his friends and relatives at home, but that he enjoys hearing from them. Quite recently, he had the opportunity to visit Dead Man's Hill and the U. S. Cemetery of World War I. He was very much impressed on seeing the U. S. Cemetery as it is so well kept. A lot of Ohio soldiers of that war are buried there. Dead Man's Hill still shows the craters of fierce fighting done in the other war. Donald says that they have one more hurdle to make and they will be inside Germany. His address is: Corporal Donald E. Valentine, ASN 35218594, Btry. C, 120th A. A. Gun Bn., APO 493, c-o Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

Edward C. Hutchison, S 2/c, who has been serving with the Sea Bees in the South Pacific, is hospitalized for back injuries suffered in course of duty. He has been in service 14 months and overseas about one year. Mrs. Hutchison is living in Ashville.

First Lieutenant Carl E. Martin, 23, has arrived at Army Air Forces Redistribution Station No. 2, in Miami Beach for reassignment processing after completing a tour of duty outside the continental United States.

Medical examinations and classification interviews at this post, one of three redistribution stations operated by the AAF Personnel Distribution Command for AAF returnee officers and enlisted men, will determine his new assignment. He will remain here about two weeks, much of which will be devoted to rest and recreation.

Lieutenant Martin, a B-24 pilot, won the Air Medal. During 10 months in the South Pacific, he flew 51 missions. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Martin, 408 East Union street, Circleville. His wife, Joyce, resides at 1036 Baker street, Muskegon Heights, Mich. A graduate of Circleville high school, Lieutenant Martin entered the Army in February 1942.

Sergeant Earl E. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coit H. Wilson, Circleville, has won high commendation for helping to shatter world's records repairing aircraft at a U. S. Air Forces command depot in England. He and his fellow mechanics sent back into action the highest number of battle-damaged craft since Air Service Command began operations in England.

A knockout blow against Germany was the way his Commanding General, Brigadier General Isaac W. Ott, described the contribution of Sgt. Wilson, whose extra effort makes it possible to maintain a constant air cover over Allied armies on the Continent.

Before entering the Air Forces in April, 1942, he was employed in farming for himself. Sgt. Wilson attended Scioto township high school in Commercial Point. He has one brother, Sergeant Harold F. Wilson, in the Air Force in Iran.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, North Court street, have been informed that their son, Lieutenant Frank E. Barnhill, has arrived safely in England. The last time that they had heard from him was on September 18.

Corporal William C. Burgett, son of Mrs. Marvane Burgett, North Pickaway street, is now in England. His address is: Cpl. William C. Burgett, ASN 35298731, 506 PRCHT, Inf. Serv. Co. APO 472, c-o Postmaster, New York, New York.

Francis Harold Furniss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Furniss, Mt. Sterling Route 3, has been transferred from Camp Atterbury, Ind., to Camp Crowder, Mo. His address is: Pvt. Francis H. Furniss, ASN 3585084, Co. B, 28th Sig. Tng., Bn. A. S. F. T. C., Camp Crowder, Missouri.

Private First Class Charles E. Morris, son of Charles E. Morris, of Salt Creek township, writes home that he is now stationed in Italy, just outside Rome. He tells them also that he has visited the Pope at the Vatican. Pfc. Morris now holds the "Good Conduct Medal" and the "Combat Infantry Badge". His new address is: Pfc. Charles E. Morris, ASN 35277325, Hq. Co., 185th Engrs. C. Bn., APO 464, c-o Postmaster, New York, New York.

Underwater exploring in a homemade diving helmet is a novel sport in the West Indies. But the refreshment that's always welcome afterwards is the same as here in the States—ice-cold Coca-Cola. In many lands around the globe, Coca-Cola has become a high-sign of friendliness, just as it is in your own home.

THE ARTIFICIAL COW

HUMAN progress doesn't necessarily stop in war time as has been assumed by many people. New ideas may blossom and old ones may be brought to perfection. Thus it develops, from a conference of the American Hospital Association, that what the world needs is artificial cows, and also beds with hydraulic control systems. The beds would be operated with electrically driven pumps, so as to provide very wide variations of posture. That is a basic principle, because everybody who has handled invalids knows how they insist on changing their position, and how much easement they get out of it.

As for the mechanical bossy, she will just be recombined from her original elements, producing milk anywhere by reconversion from butter, dried skimmed milk powder and water. It is just as simple as that, and grazing and herding and other procedures seem unnecessary. But there's probably a catch in it.

Late bulletin: The Navy says it has these mechanical cows on its battleships, and the men flock to the dairy bars. But the catch is that there has to be a bossy to give the milk to be dried first.

RACIAL VOTING

SHOULD racial groups vote solidly together? This astonishing doctrine has just been advanced by a candidate for governor of one of our largest states. Talking to an audience of Negroes, he told them to vote together as such. Presumably he would have given the same advice to Irish, Italians, Hungarians or any other racial group.

Such a doctrine needs only to be stated to show its dangers. The United States has prided itself on being the melting-pot of nations, out of which came good Americans, regardless of their original country. Instead, this candidate would break the United States up into separate racial elements, each standing by itself and jealous of the others.

The candidate probably thought it was a bright way to get the Negro vote. Intelligent Negroes will be repelled by a doctrine dangerous to themselves and to their country.

LONG-LIVED CARS

IT is really surprising, how well a lot of these old cars run," says an observant motorist. "A lot of them that have been in service for six or eight years are running so smoothly and efficiently that, if it were not for body style, you might think they were only a year or two old."

And that, of course, is because the owners are taking care of their cars now. It's remarkable, how sensible and thrifty people can be when they have to, and how inanimate objects may respond to enlightened treatment.

WASHINGTON Report

Paris Now Turning to Washington for Hats!

Paratroops Improve Unique Type of Chapel

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—An R. street milliner is making hats to send to Paris. She says she thinks the Paris hats are so hideous that French women will be glad to have something really chic to put on their heads.

The R. street milliner already has one definite order from Paris for a Washington hat. It has come from Mrs. Selden Chapin, wife of the charge d'affaires at the U. S. embassy there. Said hat is a small, shiny number made out of an inch or two of felt and a lot of feathers going criss-cross and very upety-up. Said hat is likewise come-hitherish. It also has super sophistication, so I was told.

And how will the Washington hat get to Paris? Answer—it will travel in the diplomatic mail pouch. Viva le Chapeau Wash-en-tong!

Second note from Paris. The French are finding—in the light-hearted American soldiers—the best tourists they ever had. Such spending! Such flinging about of tips!

France has never had such trade. Viva les touristes militaires!

THIS NOW IS A VERY PLEASANT piece about France. I found it in a letter a Red Cross girl wrote home.

There's a group of American soldiers whose influence you feel and see everywhere we have been. I mean the paratroopers. Of course there are none around now. The paratroopers go in to enemy territory when the going is at its very hardest. Long before any civilian can risk a trip. But the stories you hear about them are almost like old-time legends of heroes.

"Many French mothers have dressed their children in little suits of mottled green and white, as near like the paratroopers uniforms

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DAVIS LETS STATE RUN ITSELF

NEW ORLEANS—Contrary to expectations, Louisiana's singing governor, Jimmie Davis, author of "You Are My Sunshine," did not open the Louisiana state legislature with song. He was dignified and decorous. All vestiges of the hillbilly were gone.

But Governor Davis did break down at the end of the legislature and close the session with song. He stood soulfully on the speakers' platform, and, amid applause from the joint meeting of the house and senate, rendered his best cowboy tunes.

Aside from that, Louisiana's new singing governor was a disappointment—to the politicians. He didn't play ball, and in the end this seems to be bringing a revival of democracy in a state where the late Huey Long ruled as no other man has ever ruled in the U. S. A.

Louisiana is peculiarly equipped by its state constitution for dictatorship. To deal with carpet-baggers after the Civil War, its governor was given more power than any other in the Union. So Louisiana politicians are accustomed to being bossed. But they have been amazed that Jimmy Davis didn't do any bossing. Being governor was completely out of his line. He was used to making records of his song hits, used to touring the state with a hillbilly band. But he didn't know much about running a complicated state machine.

So instead of bossing the politicians, he let the state legislature debate things out according to democratic principles. And the effect has been fairly good.

DAVIS SAXON TAX BILL

In fact, when the Tax Exemption Act for new corporations came up for another ten years' renewal, Davis let nature take its course. Interesting things happened.

The Tax Exemption Act provides that new corporations coming into Louisiana are exempt from taxes for ten years. But old corporations juggled this around, so that when an oil company changed its stills from coke to high pressure, it was tax exempt on the ground that this was new development. As a result, Louisiana was losing millions in taxes.

When this Tax Exemption Bill recently came up for renewal, the senate passed it immediately, but a group of women, incensed over the fact that Louisiana schools didn't have enough tax money, started a campaign in the house. Ordinarily, Governor Davis, elected with the help of the big companies, could have been expected to push the bill through the house. But he didn't. He let the democratic process operate. The Tax Exemption renewal was defeated.

In other words, because "You Are My Sunshine" Davis is nervous and scared of making mistakes, he is turning out to be an unbrilliant but reasonably good governor. And when the rows between political factions get especially hot, Sunshine Jimmy gets into his car and drives up to Shreveport, back to his music, where the politicians just can't find him.

SENTIMENT MELLOWS TOWARD HUEY

This columnist, whose exposures of Louisiana graft had something to do with sending a considerable number of the old Huey Long gang to jail, was interested to see how sentiment toward the murdered Kingfish has mellowed as the years have passed.

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

A Scientific Study Of Food Allergies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IN OTHER days, and not so long ago, about all that was known of the subject of food allergy was that some people insisted that certain foods did not agree with them. There were strawberry rashes and those whose facial complexions came out in blotches whenever they ate sea food from oysters to lobsters and crabs.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These well known experiences were never dignified by getting into the medical textbooks until the new science of allergy or atopy was taken up by the laboratories early in this century. Since then this group of symptoms has been studied very intensively and very scientifically. It is now known that quite a broad group of functional bodily disorders including asthma, allergic headache, rhinitis, sinus and chronic nasal trouble, digestive upsets, as well as skin eruptions, such as hives and eczema, may be due to sensitiveness to foods, or to dignity it with the scientific name used above—food allergy.

It was early recognized in the history of these researches that some standards would have to be set up to determine whether a given set of symptoms was due to food allergy. It would not do simply to rely on the old post hoc, propter hoc argument and say you had a headache and it was caused by eating lamb chops and let it go at that. The so called Cooke's postulates were set up to govern any given case and they demanded for proof that the suspected food must give an inflammatory reaction when used as a skin test and besides when eaten it must produce the symptom ascribed to it. Of course, as a third postulate, it was demanded that when the original headache or other symptom was complained of the individual had eaten some of the food under suspicion. These postulates still hold, but they are subject to some modification. Many reports prove, for instance, that a certain food may produce a symptom only once out of eating it fifteen or twenty times. Nobody has ever explained that once.

As they can find. Green and white is a favorite color combination—green skirts, white blouses and green pinafores.

"I found a rude and wonderful chapel built first for the paratroopers. It had been put up in a dank old stable. But the stone floor was polished until it shined. The altar was in the corner facing the door so that you saw it first. It wasn't really an altar. Just a simple table draped with some light blue woolen material from the low ceiling to the floor. On each side of the altar was hung a single scarlet parachute and on the walls behind were two white parachutes. The seats were low metal stools made from the ends of ammunition cases."

MR. CHURCHILL may say the European war is going to last for another year or so. General Eisenhower may warn against over-optimistic peace talk. But there is one charwoman at Union station who does not agree with either authority.

The charwoman was sweeping up some of the ruckus at the station and was tastelessly dressed in pants and sweater at the time. "I don't care what anybody says, this war is soon gonna be ovah," she announced to a sister sweeper.

"That is not what the big people and the newspapers say," said the co-worker.

"I don't care what the big people and the newspapers say, I know this war is about ovah. And you want me to tell you why? O. K. This maw'nin' my boss talked back to me!"

This tale has a hundred variations at the moment. Another current yarn reports the conversation of one of the barkeepers at the Columbia Country club on the subject of who is going to win this election. "I tell you Mr. Roosevelt is gonna win," said the bartender to the crowd before him. "Poor Mr. Dewey hasn't got a chance. Why? Because Mr. Roosevelt has given ever-r-y thing away. Ever-r-y thing. He hasn't left nothin' for Mr. Dewey to hand out. And you gentlemen standin' around here waitin' for your drinks know as well as I do that you don't get nowhere if you haven't got jes' a little somethin' to hand out."

At this point the gentlemen, overlooking the club rule of "no tippling allowed," dug up two-bits or so here and there, got their highballs and martinis in double quick time and thus proved the value of the bartender's prediction.

In the case of some foods, heat destroys the allergenic factor. Some patients can tolerate evaporated milk, but not raw milk. A hard boiled egg is sometimes tolerated in an egg sensitive person. Well cooked meats or cereals may be non-allergic while meat cooked medium rare will cause symptoms.

The speed of absorption of the sensitive qualities of certain allergic foods varies and may be the cause of much puzzlement. In a sensitive subject it has been found that a peanut can produce symptoms in 24 minutes after being swallowed, but 18 minutes if given by a stomach tube. But some delayed absorption foods may not produce their allergic symptoms for 24 hours or more, leading, as I say, to puzzlement because by that time it is hard to trace the connection.

Skin Reactions
Besides the skin reactions varying all the way from hives to eczema, the most common symptoms of allergy produced by foods are asthma, rhinitis and dyspeptic upsets. The rhinitis exactly resembling in the appearance of the boggy mucous membrane of the inside of the nose, the condition found in hay fever in the height of the season.

The digestive symptoms include attacks of nausea, or indigestion, or intestinal upsets of all kinds. In order to find the food culprit it may be necessary to go on a series of elimination diets.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
J. A. F.:—You undoubtedly have heard of persons with the heart on the right side, but have you ever heard of a person with all their organs reversed? I am such a person. I am 65 years old and did not find out about it until I was 50. An X-ray shows my stomach, liver, appendix and everything reversed.

Answer: It is called situs inversus. We used to find it during army examinations every once in a while.

S. K.:—Can you recommend a good eye wash?

Answer: There is nothing better than the old standard Boric Acid in a saturated solution (about three per cent) in water.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

State highway department officials announced that Route 22, reconstructed west of the Scioto river, would be opened for traffic during the Pumpkin Show and would remain open following the festival.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

DR. RAYNOR had inferred that he and Anne would welcome Russell to New York. He laughed good naturedly at Russell's surprise. "Don't you know about Anne?" he inquired. "You certainly should. Let me tell you all about her."

Russell smiled. "It's very hard to know all about any girl."

"How right you are. That's how I almost lost what I prize most. I shall always be indebted to Mrs. Reynolds, because through her I've been able to rectify the greatest temptation I ever had. But let me tell it this way. I understand Anne gave out in Talbot that she was only a practical nurse and learned what she knew by caring for an invalid mother."

"We were all amazed at her skill."

"And a lot of other things, I'll warrant," the doctor chuckled. "Anne might have been a good actress if she'd gone in for that. But about her mother, it was true. Her father died when she was very young. He was a university professor, very brilliant, very careless about finances, so he died leaving nothing. Naturally, I looked up all these things when I realized I was falling in love with Anne. I wanted to know about her."

"Doesn't love take things for granted, Dr. Raynor?"

The man clapped him on the shoulder gayly. "You are the true young idealist. I am a scientist first, last and always. I could stop myself from loving a girl with—let us say—a hereditary taint in the blood. Or insanity in the family. Don't look shocked. I've seen girls as pretty as Anne where it was true."

"I've never seen anyone so beautiful."

The doctor chuckled. "If I didn't know Anne so well, you'd make me jealous. But you're engaged to Laura, aren't you?"

"I was."

"Having seen Laura, I suspect you still are then. There is a girl with a splendid mind. And lots of energy to use it, too. She would go far in New York. But to return to Anne. She did care for her mother all the while she was studying. It was school all day and practical nursing all night. Her mother had a little income for life, an insurance from her father. Anne never talks of it, but she couldn't have been happy. She had no girlfriends; there was no time or place for them. She could only care for her mother and study. She planned to get a good university degree and go in for teaching. The last year of her mother's life she needed constant attention. Anne studied at home. Her mother always said she would leave plenty for her education when she was gone. But her mother didn't understand. There was no money. Anne had no money for her university career and no friends to help her. She wasn't even able to get a good job. So she became a nurse. Am I being tiresome, Russell?"

"No, indeed. Naturally, I wondered about Anne. Everyone did. They were coming into Annapolis harbor now. Russell pointed out the Naval academy and historic spots. They went down to the car as the boat docked. Dr. Raynor went on talking in his smooth, confident voice.

"That's Anne's story. She made a very good nurse from the beginning. She might have studied medicine with success, I think, had anyone appreciated her soon enough. But I am happy this way. Anne promised Mrs. Reynolds to stay with her until she was out of danger. Then she's coming back to New York to join me—but not as a nurse. No, this is her last case. We would appreciate it if you'd come up for the wedding, Russell."

The young lawyer's face was inscrutable. "I won't be able to do that, Dr. Raynor."

"Well, you're invited, anyway. Anne told me how kind you'd been. And that brother, Dan, of yours. There's a strange chap for you."

"I love Dan very much, Dr. Raynor. He's the biggest thing in my life."

"I'm glad, Russell. Do you mind if, as an older and rather worldly wise man, I tell you how I size up Dan? Now I've only seen him twice, but—"

"Isn't it only once? Last night?"

"They were driving through Annapolis now. The doctor's eyes twinkled. "I mustn't let myself forget I'm talking to a good lawyer as well as Anne's friend. You know I'm rather—no, very glad to see Anne. His friends down here. I'm rather away from Dan. I'm either, because he has been a very good friend. I can't tell you how many times I've seen him. I want to say this. I think he is a generous, good-hearted youngster. But we live in bad times for such people unless they have a definite purpose in life and a guiding star which they never lose sight of. He has probably wandered back and forth over the country doing anything he can turn his hand to in order to get by. I think that's the expression. Get by. It means, at most, a bed and something to eat—and usually not that."

Russell was grave and precise. "I think you are about right, Dr. Raynor."

"I'm quite sure of it. Now Dan can either go ahead and settle down—or keep wandering."

"It's hard to settle in Talbot, Dr. Raynor. There is nothing for a young man to do. Mrs. Reynolds expresses it best when she says the old live on and the young go away."

"I like that. The old live on and the young go away. It's a poetic thought, even if it's a sad one. And your country down here is so beautiful. But let us rejoice that the old go on. Mrs. Reynolds is a symbol of what a good old age can be. She must go on. But about Dan—Russell, will you let me be very frank and know I mean well?"

"I think so."

The doctor's hand rubbed his carefully shaven cheek for a meditative moment. "It's like this. I feel I owe Dan something."

Russell's smile was very quiet. "That would be strange."

"It is strange, Russell. But I want to be frank, as I said. I want to help Dan. He needs someone to help him and—well, I don't know how you are fixed. If there is a place here, let him come to New York. To me, I'll make it my personal business to get him started in some good line and make sure he doesn't want for money while starting. That ruins many starts. He's too far along to go through a hungry period. He must have clothes, a good home, money to rattle in his pocket. Do say yes."

Russell looked straight ahead and said slowly, "You're very kind."

"I'm not. Don't put it that way. I'm very selfish. I almost lost Anne because I got a crazy idea I could marry a very rich girl and get a hospital all to myself. That is every surgeon's dream. I make a great deal of money—but I was greedy. I'm cured now. To help Dan would be to make amends—at least to myself. I promise you I won't dole money out to him like charity. I'll open a bank account for him and he won't even have to see or talk to me if he doesn't like my looks. Ask him if he'd like a job in a bank, or a broker's office, or—well, I can probably pull strings to get him most anywhere. Even if you can afford to help him, this may be the better way. In fact, the more I think of it the more I like the idea."

Russell drew a slow breath. "You want him to owe everything to you."

"Gratitude only. That's my weakness. I told you I was selfish."

"I was going to drive out to California with him and get him started in Los Angeles, where he thinks he has a chance."

The doctor's fine hand made a quick gesture. "New York is the place for people who want to make real money. Los Angeles is for the old—and movies. I don't like pictures. Won't you put my offer up to him—that is, unless you wait it to be a secret?"

Words of Wisdom
It is not ease but effort, not facility, but difficulty, that makes men. There is, perhaps, no station in life in which difficulties have not to be encountered and overcome before any decided measure of success can be achieved.—S. Smiles.

Hints on Etiquette
If a dear friend suffers a bereavement and you can make a personal call of sympathy, a letter to the friend is not necessary. If you call and the bereaved one is not at home, leave your card or a note of sympathy. If you are unable to go to see the friend a letter of condolence is imperative.

Today's Horoscope

If you're celebrating a birthday today, your mind is not an analytical one, but you are seldom misled when following your keen intuition. You are a prudent person, thorough and accurate, positive and assertive, and like to have a prominent part in whatever you do. You are happiest in pleasant surroundings. You may advantageously court and marry in the next year and make new friends. A "happy event" is not improbable if you are already married. Business will progress in spite of some annoyance. Born today a child will be fortunate in many ways, success being assured through business acumen, resourcefulness, courage, determination, adaptability, honesty and fair dealing.

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN IDEAL ARRANGEMENT

EIGHT TRUMPS on your side constitute a normally sound trump suit, but those eight may be distributed a number of different ways between yourself and your partner. In many respects the best arrangement is with them evenly divided, four in each hand. That gives you a pliability as to which holding will be treated as the master hand, using the other to ruff. It also is very handy if you decide to embark upon a cross-ruff.

West scored his Q, then the K, and fired back the A.

That launched North on a neat cross-ruff, even though he lost the trick, his spade 9 being over-ruffed by East's 10. The heart 5 was chosen for the return, though it really made no difference. The A won, the diamond 7 was led to the A, diamond 3 ruffed by the spade 6, heart K scored for a diamond discard and likewise the Q, the heart 9 ruffed by the spade 5, diamond 9 by the spade 7, club J by the spade K, diamond 10 by the A made the final trick.

Do you see a way to try for an extra trick here? Suppose North had trumped the third club with the K, then laid down the A? What then?

Barbecue and Carnival
Attracts Crowd of 200

Country Club
Event Proves Success

About 200 club members and guests gathered Tuesday at the Pickaway Country club for a gay evening that featured a barbecue and carnival. A special attraction, and one that caused much merriment, was the auction directed by Clayton Chalfin and Willson Lelst, widely-known auctioneers, many hard-to-get items and a few antiques being sold over the block. Lovely homemade cakes brought excellent prices, with canned fruits and alarm clocks being run up to new highs by the laughing crowd of bidders.

Games to please all ages provided fun during the evening that followed the excellent barbecued-beef dinner served buffet style in the club home. Guests were seated during the dinner hour at tables on the large porch and in the lounge of the home. This is the third annual festival that has been sponsored by the club, and proved to be a delightful affair.

Dr. G. D. Phillips was general chairman of the affair. Concessions and entertainments were in charge of Tom Gilliland, Orson Patrick, P. C. Routhahn, Tom Brunner, Melvin Yates, Hal Dean, Karl Mason, Harold Pontious, Vernon Hawkes, Emmett Barnhart, and Charles T. Gilmore.

JUDGE LANDIS MAY QUIT POST

O'Connor Reported To Be In Line To Succeed Baseball Czar

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—There will be denials of this story but, according to advices that are ordinarily reliable and valid, we can feel free to make two statements today with some degree of assurance. Judge K. M. Landis, feared and flattered as the $65,000-a-year commissioner of baseball, is planning an early retirement from office, because he finds an active stewardship of this multi-million dollar enterprise too taxing for his constitution which is frail, at best.

That's the first statement, and the second is he's "grooming," as our informant chose to put it, Leslie M. O'Connor as his successor.

This latter, no doubt, will come as a shock to the many gentlemen, either qualified or merely presumptuous, who have coveted the position quite these several years. Or ever since it became clear that Landis, one of these times, would be of a mind to bow himself out—when the dramatic values were appropriate.

O'Connor, a courteous man who has been Landis' efficient secretary since he took over the commission some 23 years ago, represented the judge during the recent obsequies in St. Louis, which saw all that seemed mortal of the Browns decently interred by the rival Cardinals in the sixth and final game of the World Series. It was a World Series like none other that has ever been held in several respects, one of which was especially noticeable.

No matter what decision was rendered, whether farcical or eminently fair, the members of both clubs were clearly prepared to accept it with sedate and amiable calm.

One result was a series which the principals seemed to be playing largely in pantomime. Another, that the people in the stands set out to resent, in the immemorial manner, certain of the decisions rendered but quit on the thing when they got no encouragement from the actions of the supposed victims.

The latter's behavior wasn't normal or natural, of course. It was, as we have been given to understand, ordained by edict from the commissioner's office—which is said to have felt that a public display of distemper and spleen on the part of eligible young men over a trifling ball game would be bad taste in war time.

Whether this rather singular ultimatum, if any, was taken down to St. Louis by Leslie O'Connor, and there read by him to the principals, or that he merely saw that it was carried out doesn't matter. Neither actually does the ultimatum (if any) itself.

TIGERS RETURN TO GRID WARS FRIDAY NIGHT

Rod Heine May Be Lost For Rest Of Season With Fractured Wrist

Circleville high school Tigers are back at hard work this week, getting ready to resume their football campaign Friday after a week's rest.

While Friday night's game against Liberty Union should not be too hard to win, Coach Black is taking no chances of overconfidence of staleness. Stiff practices were held Monday and Tuesday with more work on tap Wednesday. Thursday the boys will ease off to be in top shape to try for their fourth straight victory.

The squad suffered a serious loss Tuesday when Rod Heine, promising junior back, suffered a fractured wrist when he fell on the wrist during practice. X-rays showed the large bone in the wrist was cracked. While the injury is not believed serious it will sideline Heine for several weeks and he may not get to play the rest of the season.

His loss will not be noticed so much this week but Heine's ability to make plenty of yardage by his hard running will be missed in the Wilmington game next week and other hard games coming up.

In his first start Heine turned in very nice runs against Roseville in the last outing of the Tigers.

During the layoff several boys have shown good in practice and more new faces may be seen Friday night. Coach Black now has almost two full teams of "starters", who may be changed without weakening the lineup.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Encouraged by the success of last Thursday's telecast of "America's Town Meeting of the Air," which marked the first time a major network show had been televised during its regular broadcast period, officials of WRGB are planning to televise several other leading network shows. One of the leaders in current discussions is Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm," heard Sundays.

Whit Burnett, associate producer of "This Is My Best," on Tuesday nights, is the man responsible for the first published works of such famed writers as the late Eric Knight, author of "This Above All," Richard Wright, the Negro author who penned "Native Son," William Saroyan, Ludwig Bemelmans and hundreds of others now in the best-seller class.

Orson Welles and Shirley Booth, both names to conjure with in the entertainment field, are Kate Smith's guests on Sunday.

Jean Tennyson, soprano star of "Great Moments in Music," Wednesday nights, is vacationing for two weeks. Substitutes are Jean Dickenson and Anna Roselle.

Miss Dorothy E. Wood, a secretary in New York City, won 2,000 cigarettes for a friend in the Army by showing studied coyness on a recent "Thanks to the Yanks" program. When Host Bob Hawk asked her to describe the correct position for a secretary when about to take dictation from her employer, she thought for a moment, and said: "It depends, of course, on what you mean by 'correct.' But the smart secretary is ready for ANYTHING at all times!"

When Roy Acuff "calls" the closing square dance on each week's "Grand Ole Opry," he's not just shouting for exercise. The dance is performed at the end of each show by young men and women of the staff of the Tennessee agricultural extension service office.

Mildred Bailey, queen of the rocking chair rhythms, will be heard as the guest of Larry Doug-

County War Fund Campaign Set for October 23 To November 4.

$16,300 QUOTA ESTABLISHED IN NATIONAL DRIVE

Sum To Be Added To Cover Agencies Assisted By Community Chest

Pickaway county War Fund campaign will be held October 23 to November 4, it was announced Wednesday by members of the Pickaway County Community Chest.

Pickaway county's quota in the national drive this year is $16,300. To this amount will be added a sum sufficient to cover the needs of the various community agencies which have been assisted by the Community Chest for the last two years. Total goal of this year's local campaign will be announced by Chest trustees within a few days.

Announcement of the drive was made following a meeting at which it was decided that Circleville and Pickaway county should unite with the National War Fund campaign which is to be carried on throughout the nation during October and November.

New Secretary
At the meeting the resignation of Mack Parrett as secretary of the Community Chest trustees was accepted. Mr. Parrett said the resignation was forced by ill health and the press of other duties.

Mrs. Louise Helwigen Roth was employed to replace Mr. Parrett for the duration of the campaign and started on her new duties Wednesday.

Funds were voted at the meeting to the Benevolent association, Boy Scouts and the Pickaway County Public Health association.

Circleville and Pickaway county did not have a National War Fund campaign in 1943, because their quota of $15,551 was met by funds remaining from the Community Chest campaign in 1942.

SATURDAY LAST DAY TO MAIL FIGHTER GIFTS

Postmaster A. Hulse Hays, Wednesday reminded Circleville and Pickaway counties noon Saturday was the deadline for mailing Christmas packages to service men and women overseas.

October 15 was announced as the final date to mail gifts to those in service outside the United States, but since that date falls on Sunday, Saturday is the final day they will be accepted at the Circleville post office.

The parcel post window at the post office closes Saturday at 11:36 a. m. (Circleville time), Mr. Hays warned prospective gift senders.

Business has been rushing since Sept. 15, Mr. Hays said. Gift package mailing has been much heavier than last year and most of the packages have been wrapped better and addressed more completely. The one item overlooked by most people is a label which has stamped on it the words "this package may be opened for postal inspection if necessary."

Mr. Hays reminded relatives and friends to observe these rules to be sure their gifts reach its destination in time for Christmas.

Mail before 11:30 a. m. Saturday.

Be sure the package does not weigh more than five pounds.
Be sure the package has a complete address of the man or woman in service and return address; the gifts are securely wrapped in a good strong box and tied with heavy string.

"Don't People Take The Darndest Chances?"

Yes, we do. But oddly, risks taken by the other fellow always look more perfidious. That's why the man who fails to insure his property doesn't realize his danger until it's too late. How about you? Do you have proper insurance protection... at lowest possible cost?

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

don't criticize Huey any more. Some folks even regard him as a martyr. The bridges, the highways, the schoolbooks remain as ruthless as monuments to Huey's humanity. His ruthless wise-cracking and dictatorial rule are forgotten. Before long, the Kingfish will be regarded as a full-blown saint.

Congressman Jimmy "Minnow" Morrison, who came to Washington planning to be another Kingfish, is having the fight of his life for renomination this year. Apparently Louisiana is getting tired of clowns and Junior Kingfishes, for Morrison is the only Louisiana Congressman who faces a run-off.

Morrison also poses as the great hero and benefactor of men in the service, tells how he brought them the GI BILL, mustering out pay, the absentee soldiers' vote. Real truth, however, was that Morrison didn't even vote when these important GI bills were passed. He didn't even bother to be on the floor of Congress.

NOTE—William Baldwin Shearer, the big shipyard lobbyist who claims he broke up the Coolidge Naval conference, is now in Louisiana helping the Junior Kingfish's campaign. Morrison seems to have plenty of money to spend.

ALL THE NAMES

George Shillito, investigator for the Senate Campaign Expenses Committee, was explaining the reason he had resigned from the Dies Committee staff. "I quit," he said, "because I brought them the names of 200,000 Communists in Detroit and they refused to touch them."

"Did you say 200,000 Communists in Detroit alone?" asked a friend. "That doesn't sound quite right."

"Well, it is," Investigator Shillito insisted. "I had the names of all the CIO members in Detroit."

SENATORIAL EXCHANGE

After a score of years in the Senate, even Montana's Burt Wheeler still occasionally steps into trouble where he least expects it. North Dakota's Senator Langer recently arose to attack the administration on its conduct of the mass sedition trial. Before he had spoken for more than a minute, Wheeler interrupted to compliment him "for having the courage to stand up on the floor of the senate and take up an unpopular issue of this kind."

Langer thanked Wheeler, who prepared to resume his seat after remarking that Langer was doing the country a great service.

"Again I thank the senator," graciously replied the senator from North Dakota. "I like to work more closely with the distinguished senator from Montana and hope the time will come when he and I can work together for irrigation, so that Montana will not have 1-711,409 acres irrigated and poor North Dakota only 21,615 acres irrigated."

Astounded, Wheeler replied: "I hope we obtain more irrigation in Montana. We need it." North Dakota, he added, didn't need as much as Montana.

"Of course," shot back Langer. "The real answer is that most of the water goes through Montana first before it reaches North Dakota, and Montana grabs it."

The senator from Montana did not interrupt again.

SCOUTS OF TROOP 107 ARE TO BE ADVANCED

Seven members of Boy Scout troop 107 of the Methodist church will be advanced at the next local court of honor.

A board of review conducted for members of the troop approved for advancement to second class Scout, James I. Smith, Jr., Robert McAllister, Louis McClaren and Robert Morgan. Merit badge requirements were passed by James R. Lytle, four, Bob Phillips, two, and John Beck, one.

Muhlenberg Residents Convert Theatre Into Service Men Memorial

Residents of Muhlenberg township are busy remodeling and redecorating a building in Darbyville as a memorial to service men.

The Muhlenberg Township Memorial Association, formed last February "for the purpose of aiding in any way possible the members of our armed forces", has bought the Secoy theatre in Darbyville. Members plan to use it as a permanent memorial building and as a meeting place to provide entertainment for returning service men.

Association members plan to remodel the building to make it as home-like and comfortable as possible. When the project is completed the association plans to entertain citizens of Pickaway county to explain in detail plans and purposes and to let them see what one small community is doing for our fighters.

State and county officials have commended the association on its project.

Appreciation was expressed Wednesday by the association for a gift of $100 to the building fund from the county post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.
